A Capital wanted.

We find the Nacion Argentina has the above advertisement, in reply to numerous enquiries, we give the several significations it admits of. Capital is a word which involves great disputation, and is therefore open to a deal of quibbling, especially when there is, moreover, "interest" in question. Capital may be termed; something to make money of: and hence it is very often turned to good account as a pecuniary speculation. For instance, without it some journalists would not have us wherewith to shine before the public, and men of other learned professions would pass unnoticed. It gives great importance, and society naturally respects the man who is said to be a capitalist. Some, like Diogenes, affect to despise it and would have public offices live in a rancho; but it is truly observed that those who scoff at "men of capital" are often poor as Job. In this sense, "interest" must also be calculated, and it is difficult to separate the idea of capital therefrom. There is "simple" & "compound" interest, just, as the capitol of Buenos Ayres gives a plain simple interest to all business men, while it is strange to say, draw a larger interest, not having any capital. Brokers at times, do business without capital, and keep up appearances, there being a two-fold interest of those who "sell" and those who are "sold", one losing as the other gains. But this is ever apt to produce a crisis, and the system is bad. Many trade on a capital lent for three or four or ten years, which also may be considered as working on nothing; for Shakspeare says 'neither a borrower nor a lender be.' In fine when a 'capital' is wanted, we should if possible find one, though we go to California in search of it, but it is natural to expect the readiest place would be near the "bank" of the "Plate".

Capital is used always in a good sense, unless as capital punishment and such it is pretended the Congress was about to inflict on Buenos Aires when proposing to decapitate the Province by federalizing this city. We there fore prefer any other acceptation of the advertisement which we are endeavoring to interpret.

A bottle of champagne is a capital thing after dinner; a man who tells a good story, or sings or dances, or jokes, well is said to be a capital fellow; Kerosene is reported a capital produce; Alticar is called a capital artiste; Rosas is esteemed a capital politician; and Manigot is a capital hatter.

But none of these are wanting to the Nacion Argentina, for we glory in possessing these capital requisites.

The seven capital or deadly sins occur to our idea, but we have these unfortunately in abundance.

Pride—a foolish notion that Buenos Aires is modern Athens.

Covetousness—to take our neighbours assets, and refuse to pay his debts.

Lust—an unbounded lust of power, whether we are fit or not.

Anger—as is exhibited at the Bar of the Chambers.

Gluttony—as seen at the supper-table of public balls.

Envy—being jealous of every body but ourselves.

Sloth—having lain inactive during 50 years (ask Dr. Costa.)

The seven capital sins are neither wanting nor wanted. What then?

The capital or metropolis of a nation, the head which guides and rules the members, the source of thought, action, and energy, the scent of power, the ornament and crowning-piece of the body politic: this is wanted by the Nacion Argentina, which presents the form of a huge, shapeless trunk, inert and monstrous. A miracle was performed by St Denis of Paris, who walked three miles without his head: but who will give now that wonderful power to enable this Republic to march onward, headless! i. e. without a Capital. And what capital worthy of a fine country! Is this rising city, with its civilization, amusements, press, institutions, commerce &c.

This is the Capital Wanted—parties interested are requested to consult General Mitre, President elect.

Congress—Senators

After the recent unsatisfactory issue of the great law which took so much time, labor and intelligence to pass through Congress, and was so incomingly rejected by the inferior tribunal, a full seems to have come over every kind of legislation. The Provincial deputies could not get up a quorum, the other evening, and one member was over-reasoned, as if he had nothing more to do in parliamentary life; we wish many more would follow his example. The National Senators looked quite gloomy yesterday, and the postponement of the debate has been a census of mortality, to judge by the lugubrious aspect of all present. The bar was deserted; the president never smiled; the Tribuna and National reporters were absent, and their occupation was gone; the only interesting incident during the hum-drum reading of the bill, was the yelping of an unmannerly cur, which had escaped the policeman's notice. The project was passed without opposition, in the form submitted by the Deputies, Dr Navarro making some grammatical strictures, and the informing member Pelligrini, Secretary. Letters must be prepaid 1 dollar and newspapers are free of postage.

There being nothing more to do in the Chamber rose, but one of the Senators advised the committee to despatch for next session Mr Raun's project of Salado navigation, as otherwise the capital question—our legislative bug—would simply come on us, before we should finish this project.

The "Standard" cotton-seed.

During the last few days we have distributed almost all the seed remaining on our hands. The season for sowing having set in, we are daily requested for more, and regret that the Government of Buenos Aires and Cotton Association do not imitate our example by lamenting this branch of industry. Some of our correspondents, who think more of politics than trade, laugh at the idea of planting cotton in gardens, yet this was the beginning of that great commerce of the United States, which, like the plant itself, has spread rapidly into vigour, and gave such splendid returns. For the information of those who cannot read English we reproduce the instructions for planting, in French, the excellent hand-book "Labrador Argentino" adopts the method to this climate, and M. Cavenago, the author, has kindly granted us the right of translation.

We have, on exhibition, specimens of Santa Fé, Salto, Corrientes, and Paraguay cotton, with a table of the respective values of all the cottons of the Argentine provinces. These are interesting data, and shew how profitable would be this staple, if attended to and provided with easy means of transport. Sr. Del Rio, member of Congress, assures us that Entre Rios is peculiarly suitable for cotton, and that the Provincial Government intends to turn a favorable attention to its growth. Before many days we shall have to publish reports from our friends in Santa Fé, the islands of Paraná, our suburbs, and rural districts, where so many experiments are being made. Our latest emissions have been:

To D Torquato Alvear—Buenos Aires
" " Juan Almagro—San A de Areco
" " M. Bruzet—Paraná Islands
" " Ramon Helguera—Entre Rios Arroyo
" " Bienstial Gayon—Buenos Aires
" " T. Gowland— " "
" " M. Arelano— " "

Thus we continue in this labor of love, since we make no money by the matter; but future generation may do us justice, and when the Registrar of Archives will turn over some tacheres phiphy leaves of our colleague, he will be refreshed to read also in a dusty old "Standard", our articles on Cotton. By comparing results, he will be able to decide which of us has better fulfilled our great mission—to be useful to our fellowmen.

Latest News.

San in Jujuy—Peñaloza in arms.

MONTEVIDEO. We have received our files from Montevideo up to the 17th instant.

The question between the Vicar, Nuncio, and Curate of the Matriz church, had not yet terminated.

The new opera, "A masqua ball," was to be given shortly, for the benefit of Messrs Rossi and Walter, of the Italian opera company, which is expected here next week.

JUJUY. No news, except that San Louis Seca Allende, ex Governor of Cordova, and Clavero, were quietly residing in that province.

RIOJA. A revolution against the Government was shortly expected, and it stated that it did not intend to resist, having no means of fighting Peñaloza!

TUCUMAN. The governor had returned from his visit to the country districts, and appointed Dr Ascencio Gorbalan minister of government. There was a majority in that, as in all the other northern provinces except Santiago, for General Mitre and Dr Marcos Paz, for the presidency. Elections were to take place in a few days. There were many candidates against the government of Santiago, for having imposed a fine upon all carts from Tucuman, passing through its territory.

SANTIAGO. The fall of O'Mill, in Catamarca had brought about a good understanding between the governments of the two provinces

CORDOVA. It was reported again that the bandit Ontiveros was in arms, in the district of San Javier, robbing estancias and passengers. Elections for the presidency took place as follows; of 16 electors only 12 attended. President, General Bartolomeo Mitre, unanimously; Vice President, Dr Marcos Paz, 9 votes, Colonel Sarmiento 4, Dr Marcos Paz, 3 votes. Trade very dull.

SANTA FE. Elections were to take place for three members of the provincial legislature. It was reported that the Chief of Police of Rosario intended to promote sedition. The question has been the editor of the Diario and the collector of customs had been taken before the criminal courts

Debating Society.

To the Editor of the Standard.

SIR—

At one or two of the last General meetings of the British Library shareholders, the project of establishing a Debating Society has been recurred to though without leading to any practical result.

This is to be regretted, as the importance of a society of this nature among British Clerks, could not I think, be too highly estimated, and as I have not heard further objection urged to the scheme, beyond the one of mere indifference it might be possible, by recounting a few of the advantages to be derived from its excite an interest among those who are in a position to initiate and support such a Society.

There were few present at the meeting of the Provident Association, the other evening, who would not have noticed the small proportion of speakers among so many clerks.

Now I feel sure that there were several present who with clear, and useful views on many of the subjects discussed, were deterred from giving them for the benefit of their fellow-clerks, solely from their disinclination to make themselves ridiculous and from their inability to express their ideas, and to clothe them in suitable words. Thus, I doubt not, many valuable suggestions, and remarks, were lost to the Meeting, and to the Committee.

A debating society, I argue, would avert this difficulty. It would give confidence to the timid, and fluency to the inelequent. It would enable a man to condense his ideas, to put them in proper and attractive form for taking the attention of his hearers, and it would give the meeting the benefit of more, and newer ideas.

But this is one of the smallest of the advantages accruing from a Debating Society. The constant interchange of ideas among so many, would tend to the dissipation of erroneous ideas, and the adoption of correct ones; to the casting off of narrow prejudices, and the growth of liberal opinions on the thousand and one subjects eligible for debate. It would lead a man to the discovery of powers in himself which he little thought of possessing, and, by a natural consequence, to a cultivation of such powers for his own improvement.

Lastly, it would be the promoter of a useful, instructive, and laudable mode of occupying the time, which many of us find to hang so heavily on our hands. Idle time is one of the worst things for any one to possess, how much more for those whose lives are spent in a city where dissipation, and debauchery, are rendered of so easy access.

The friendly emulation arising from the discussion of a debating Society, would be an incentive to study, and self-improvement, and from the constant acquirement of useful knowledge, and the friendly unity that would thus be established amongst British Clerks, I feel sure that the meetings of a well-regulated institution of this nature, would be looked forward to with eagerness, and pleasure.

I have here given you, Mr. Editor, a few of my views on the subject. I do not claim for myself either originality of idea, or completeness of argument. Much more might be written in favor of the matter, and if I have, by introducing it, caused an interest among those whom it ought to interest and who are more competent to deal with it then myself, so that they will take it up, and embody it in some practical form, not altogether in vain will your wide read columns have opened to the reception of—

A GOOD IDEA.

China.

We extract the following from the "Times" of the 9th at a true statement of how affairs are in China.

In a circumstantial despatch which we published on Wednesday will have been found the whole truth of the story which a false report from China had represented as a "reverse" sustained by the allied troops at the hands of the Taepings, and an ominous foretaste of troubles to come. Even in Parliament the affair was regarded as the possible beginning of another Chinese war, involving us in costly obligation to retrieve a lost credit and maintain a false position. Happily, there is not even a foundation of fact for the tale thus accredited. We have sustained no reverse whatever, but, on the contrary, have been uniformly successful in the small operations we have thought fit to undertake. Indeed, there has been scarcely so much as a casualty to report among the troops engaged; nor were the proceedings themselves conducted on any considerable scale or with any important object. The only untoward incident was the death of the French Admiral, who, in the advance upon a town which was taken after a single hour's siege, received a mortal wound at the head of his men and fell. A very few words will suffice to explain not only what has been done, but what has been the object of the movements so unaccountably misrepresented.

Shanghai, as the reader is aware, is protected against the onslaught of the Chinese rebels by a garrison of English and French troops. We have about 1,600 infantry, Europeans and Sepoys together, and 180 artillery. The contingent of the French is not quite so strong. Our allies have 400 Chasseurs and 200 sailors, and the combined forces, aided by the squadron on the station, is sufficient to preserve a wealthy and populous city from destruction it was conceived, however, that the supplies of the garrison would be put on a safer footing if some of the smaller towns in the vicinity were also occupied, so that property might be protected and peace insured not only within the walls of Shanghai, but within a given circuit round the city. With this view propositions were made to the Imperialist commanders, & it was agreed that if the allies would dislodge the rebels from certain specified towns the Imperialists would forthwith occupy and hold them. In pursuance of this, re arrangements Kading, Nojow, and Cio-ling were successively taken by the allies without any material difficulty, and almost without loss. The rebels were in some strength, and showed a certain amount of courage, but they were promptly repulsed wherever they ventured to attack, and were driven from every position which they attempted to hold. In the whole series of engagements the casualties included but three deaths, one being that of the French Admiral.

Although, however, the allies thus completely accomplished their portion of the work, the Imperialists failed altogether to fulfil the compact they had made. They could not find troops to garrison even Kading, and the allies were obliged to take that duty temporarily. Presently, while we were engaged in the proceedings above described, they appear to have exposed themselves to attack by an imprudent advance, and the whole Imperialist force—not a very large one—in the neighbourhood of Shanghai was defeated and dispersed. When this intelligence was brought to General Staveley, he, of course, saw that the concerted project was at an end. The allies themselves had not troops enough for the occupation of the outlying towns and if these places could not be held by the forces of the Imperial Government they must be relinquished So they were relinquished accordingly, but even in withdrawing the little garrison from Kading—a critical operation after anything like reverse—there was not a single casualty experienced. The enemy retreated as the relieving column advanced—a sufficient proof, if any were needed, that the prestige of our arms was unaffected In fact, we were doing what it had been proposed to do with perfect success, when the weakness of the Imperialists disconcerted the scheme Our troops are now concentrated in Shanghai as before, and the idea of holding certain outlying post is given up for the present. We could re-take these posts with the greatest ease, but with our present numbers we could not hold them to garrison them, and must content ourselves, therefore, with protecting Shanghai.

EDITION FRANÇAISE.
Septembre 19—1862.

Les Zouaves et les Mexicains.

Le Général Lorencez, ainsi que nous l'avions prévu, a tenté d'effacer l'impression fâcheuse que l'échauffourée avait produite en France. Il vient de nous faire insulter à un de ces glorieux combats où le succès le plus complet couronna la tentative la plus audacieuse.

Ce combat, dont le Moniteur rend compte, n'est passé dans la nuit du 13 au 14 Juin. Le Général Zulonga occupait des positions très avantageuses devant Ingenio et il s'était emparé de la crête d'une haute colline, dont il avait confié la défense au Général Ortega. Quelques dues aux forces et dans la sécurité que les mesures qu'il avait prises semblaient garantir, le Général Mexicain ne craignait pas de signifier à Lorencez l'injonction abandonner le territoire du Mexique. Cette outrecuidance ne devait pas tarder à être châtiée par Lorencez, résolut de profiter de la sécurité de ses ennemis et de frapper sur eux un coup de foudre, qui fasse éprouver le souvenir de sa mésaventure.

En effet au milieu de la nuit le capitaine Détrié à la tête de 150 à 200 Zouaves reçoit l'ordre de se poster en avant, de surprendre l'ennemi et de s'emparer, si faire se pouvait des hauteurs que gardait le Général Ortega avec 2,000 hommes.

Les Zouaves, altérés de vengeance, et langueux de cette occasion que leur offrait la fortune de laver dans le sang de l'ennemi, l'affront qu'ils en avaient reçu, s'élèguent bientôt le point où le capitaine Détrié doit être rejoint par une compagnie du 99e de ligne destinée à le renforcer. C'est en passe, comme il avait été prévu; les ordres sont ponctuellement exécutés et une nuit sombre favorise de son obscurité la marche de nos vaillants soldats.

Le capitaine Détrié étudie la pente la plus escarpée: et c'est là où les obstacles sont le plus accumulés que il veut fondre sur l'ennemi; car il sait que c'est là aussi que l'ennemi sera le moins gardé. Les Zouaves escaladent le rocher dans le plus profond silence, s'aident de leurs mains, de leurs armes, des branches, des herbes, de tout ce qui enfin leur donne un point d'appui, et bientôt ils atteignent le sommet de la montagne. Quelques rares sentinelles à mitié endormies, veillant négligemment à la garde du camp. Entourées par les Zouaves elles sont poignardées et les huilonnées avant qu'elles puissent jeter l'alarme. La colonne d'attaque avance alors plus rapidement et tombe enfin comme la foudre sur les Mexicains, qui surpris, épouvantés s'enfuient, se rendent, ou tombent sous nos coups. En un clin d'œil les 2000 hommes d'Ortega sont dispersés, mis hors d'état de nuire, et le capitaine Détrié que assistait en dirige les pièces sur l'arrière-garde de Zulonga.

Le Général Mexicain bat en retraite devant cette reprise de défi, et il apprend de la bouche de ses propres canons que Puebla est vengé!

Nouvelle Banque de Londres et du Rio de la Plata.

Il vient de se fonder à Londres une Banque dont le siége sera à Buenos Ayres. Parmi les directeurs figurent les noms du directeur de la Banque coloniale et du Banque de la cité. Ce comptoir d'o-compte commencera ses opérations sous la raison sociale de Banque de Londres et du Rio de la Plata et son capital se montera à la somme de £600,000, soit 12,000,000 francs divisé en cinq millesactions de 2500 fr. chacune, avec faculté d'augmentation. Ces actions commandent déjà une prime de 6&c. et ne tarderont pas, nous n'en doutons pas à être cotées plus avantageusement encore sur la place de Londres.

Chemin de' Fer du Sud.

Cette Compagnie a été fondée au capital de 18,760,000 francs représentés par 37,500 actions de 500 fr. chacune, lesquelles ont tou-tes trouvées un placement immédiat.

Les ouvrages de la ligne Messrs. Peto et Betts ont chargé Mr. Th. Rumbale ingenieur de la construction de la voie, du tracé du plan &c.

Ce chemin, dont l'exécution assure un avenir de prospérité et de bien être à toute la partie Sud Est de la Province, ne tardera pas a donner des signes de exécutions, et nous verrons sous peu arriver les matériaux que sa construction peut requérir.

ETRANGER.

—On écrit de Berlin que, aussitôt après la ra ification du traité de commerce avec la France, le gouvernement présenters un projet de loi destiné à appliquer le nouveau tarif établi par les traités à tou-tes les nations étrangères, à l'exception de la Suisse Hollande et Belgique. Quant à ce dernier Etat, on négocie lui un traité particulier qui, à ce qu'on espère, sera conclu très prochainement. Pour la Suisse, il ne sera pu sible de lui appliquer le tarif que quand les negociations que doivent avoir lieu à ce sujet avec les gouvernemens de l'Allemagne méridionales seront terminées.

Du reste, le gouvernement prussien est fermement décidé, si les Etats du Zollverein refusent d'accéder au traité avec la France, à r noncer à l'union douanière. C'est cet autoinne qu'il devra décider sur les traités du Zollverein qui expireront dans ce cas au ter janvier 1866.

L'événement se fait, autour de l'Autriche, le roi de Bavière vient, à ce qu'il paraît, de faire connaître qu'il ne s'opposerait pas, malgré l'invitation verbale de l'empereur d'Autriche, aux décisions prises par la Législature 6 propos du traité franco prussien.

Le comte de Rlono vient d'entreprendre un voyage se rattachant à la question de l'union douanière. Il visitera d'abord les cours du Midi les plus opte à s'associer à la politique commerciale de l'Autriche, autagoniste du traité franco-prussien.

—Le*Messager du Midi* publie l'extrait suivant d'une lettre de Saigon, en date du 28 mai, qui annonce la conclusion prochaine de la paix avec le gouvernement cochinchinois.

"Au moment où je vous écris, une frégate annamite est mouillée devant Saigon, ayant à son bord le ministre de l'intérieur, celui de la guerre et le directeur général des douanes, qui sont envoyés par l'empereur Tu Duc pour traiter de la paix. Les entrevues officielles ont déjà eu lieu.

LES
PAR
VICTOR HUGO.
(Suite.)

Dans les grossissements fantastiques de la première minute, il se figura presque que ce grand vesuth de s'animer et de prendre tout à coup une terrible, et après tout, qu'il connue un chien pour avertir tout le monde et réveiller les gens endormis.

Il marcha, s'approcha, vit, entendit, et retomba de la pointe du pied sur le talon. Il entendit aux fenêtres battre dans ses tempes comme deux marteaux de forge, et lui sembla que son souffle sortait dean poitrine avec le bruit du vent qui sort d'une caverne. Il lui parut inexprimable que la l'horrible clameur de ce grand irrité n'eût pas éveillé toute la maison comme une secousse de tremblement de terre; la porte poussée par lui, tout prêt à l'ouvrir et avait appelé le vieillard allait se lever, les deux vieilles femmes allaient crier, on entendrait à l'aide; avant un quart d'heure, la ville serait en rumeur et la gendarmerie sur pied. Un moment il se crut perdu.

Il demeura où il était, pétrifié comme la statue de sel, n'osant faire un mouvement. Quelques minutes s'écoulèrent. La porte l'évêque. Il demeura pétrifié comme la statue de sel, n'osant faire un mouvement. Quelques minutes s'écoulèrent. La porte s'était ouverte toute grande. Il se hasarda à regarder dans la chambre. Rien n'y avait bougé. Il prêta l'oreille. Rien ne remuait dans la maison. Le bruit avait semblé n'avoir éveillé personne.

Le premier danger était passé, mais il y avait encore un où un affreux tumulte. Il ne recula pas pourtant. Même quand il serait sur, perdu, il n'avait pas perdu. Il ne songea pas qu'un fuir vite. Il fit un pas et entra dans la chambre.

Cette chambre était dans un calme par fait. On y distinguait ça et là des formes confuses et vagues qui, au jour, étaient des meubles. Dans le fond, les rideaux du lit ouverts, des volumes amplies sur un tabouret, un fauteuil chargé de vêtements, une prie-Dieu, une bergère de beaux étoffes plus que des coins tendreux et des places immobiles. Jean Valjean avança avec précaution en évitant de se heurter aux meubles. Il entendait au fond de la chambre la respiration égale et tranquille de l'évêque endormi.

Il s'arrêta tout à coup. Il était près du lit. Il y était arrivé plus tôt qu'il n'aurait cru.

Un nature mêle quelquefois aux efforts et aux spectacles de nos sauvages une sorte de pudeur qui s'apropos sombre et intelligent, comme si elle voulait nous faire réfléchir. Depuis plus d'une demi-heure un grand nuage couvrait la ciel. Au moment où Jean Valjean arrivait au face du lit, ce nuage se déchira, comme s'il l'eut fait exprès, et un rayon de lune, traversant la longue fenêtre, vint éclairer subitement le visage pâle de l'évêque. Il dormait paisiblement. Il était presque vêtu dans son lit, à cause des nuits froides des Basses Alpes. Une vêtement de laine brune qui lui couvrait les bras jusqu'aux poignets. Sa tête était renversée sur l'oreiller dans l'attitude abandonnée du repos; il laissait passer hors du lit un main ornée du pastoral et d'où étaient tombées tant de bonnes œuvres et tant de saintes actions. Toute sa face brillait d'une vague expression de satisfaction, de bonheur et de béatitude. Quant plus qu'un sourire et presque un rayonnement. Il y avait sur son front la sérénité répandue par la notion d'une lumière qu'on ne voyait pas. Le rêve dans l'ombre pendant le sommeil contemple un ciel mystérieux.

Le reflet de ce ciel était sur l'évêque. Outre cela, comme toutes les grandes natures contemplatives, car ce rêve était peut-être de lui. Ce ciel, c'était sa conscience.

Au moment où la rayon de lune vint se superposer, pour ainsi dire, à cette clarté intérieure, l'évêque endormi apparut comme dans une gloire. Cette gloire pourtant était douce et voilé d'une demi-jour inoffable. Cette lune dans le ciel, cette nature assoupie, ce jardin sans un firmament, cette maison si calme. Pleure, le moment, le silence, ajoutaient je ne sais quoi de solennel et d'indicible au majestueux repos de cet homme, et enveloppaient d'une sort d'auréole pieuse et sereine ces cheveux blancs et ces yeux fermés, cette figure où était empreinte et où tout était confiance, cette tête de vieillard et ce sommeil d'enfant.

Il y avait presque de la divinité dans cet homme ainsi plongé à son tour dans le sommeil.

Jean Valjean, lui était dans l'horreur, chancelant de fer à la main, debout, immobile, effaré de ce vieillard immuablement endormi. Il n'avait rien vu de pareil. Cette confiance l'épouvantait. La seule conscience a pas de plus grand spectacle que celle d'un homme qui marche droit à la lumière, avec un bon fond d'une mauvaise action, et contemplant le sommeil d'un juste.

Ce sommeil dans une maison, et avec un voisin tel que lui, avait quelque chose de sublime qu'il sentait vaguement mais profondément.

Nul n'eut pu dire ce qui se passait au fond, au moins lui. Pour essayer de ces rouleaux compliés, il faut avoir vu ce qu'il a plus dous. Sur son visage même on n'eut rien pu distinguer avec certitude. C'était une sorte d'effarement hagard. Il regardait et ne voilà tout. Mais quelle était sa pensée? Il est d'abord impossible de la démêler. Ce qui était évident, c'est qu'il était ému et bouleversé. Mais de quelle nature était cette émotion?

Son œil ne se détachait pas du vieillard. La seule chose qui se dégageât clairement de l'ensemble de ses impressions, c'était une étrange indécision. On eut dit qu'il hésitait entre les deux abimes, celui où l'on se perd et celui où l'on se sauve. Il semblait prêt à briser ce crâne ou à baiser cette main.

Au bout de quelques instants, son bras gauche se leva lentement vers son front, et, dès sa casquette, puis son bras retomba avec le même lenteur, et Jean Valjean rentra dans sa contemplation, sa casquette dans la main gauche, sa manche dans le

ACADEMY OF COMMERCE
GERMAN & ARGENTINE
292—CALLE FLORIDA—292

Directors — J. Debarbieri & S. Bayfass.

Establishments of that nature as the above-mentioned, have given in Germany and the United States, such well known great advantages, for the last ten years, as to their superiority in every branch of practical instruction, that it seems unnecessary to go into any particulars as to their merits.

The system of instructing by Pestalozzi and Saloman, improved by Dicterweg and many others famous all over the world throughout the world have for basis to draw the attention of the scholars to the practical, and attain it by that method, in an easy and simple way, and in a very short time, the most astonishing results.

The undersigned, by long experience in the first commercial houses in Europe, and afterwards in some of the best schools, confidently believe themselves to be thoroughly competent to establish here such an Academy, and to manage it according to its name.

We take the liberty to inform the public that the Academy shall be opened on the first of October.

As for the informations required in regard to scholars, (interns and externs) the Directors will give all references.

N. B.—The studies are obligatory for all scholars in the same rates as the Branches mentioned in the Programme, shall be extra prices.
